Interviewer's Comments

Simply put, Megan Lee is an inspiration. It's hard not to be impressed with her dedication to providing better lives for the children around her. She may come across as a bit reserved at first, but that quickly disappears once she gets into chatting about her reasons for wanting to work with children. Megan Lee is currently working as an au pair but has previously worked as a teacher, and her ultimate goal is to open her own child therapy centre with all practices under one roof: occupational therapy, physiotherapy and speech therapy. Until then, Megan Lee wants to gain as much experience working with children as possible. Her perseverance is quite evident when looking over her formal and informal work history. In her application, she states "The greatest joy is to see a child recognising and developing their full potential and assisting them in developing the coping mechanisms to tackle any challenges they may experience". Statements like these show an innate understanding of what will help a child succeed in life. We are confident in Megan Lee's current knowledge and skills, and we anticipate her becoming a strong, uplifting mentor for any children that she works with. We highly recommend her for any child related positions available.
